Outlook for Forest Dunes looks promising under new ownership

With a new owner and management team in place, the Forest Dunes Golf Club is ready to take another swing at economic viability and boosting local tourism dollars.

The South Branch Township Planning Commissioners recently approved changes for the planned unit development at Forest Dunes.

One of the main changes approved by planners was construction of a two-story, 22-room hotel. The hotel, which is estimated to cost $1.2 million to $2 million, will be built next to the Forest Dunes Clubhouse, said Todd Campbell, the general manager for Forest Dunes. Page 11A

Winter sports teams combine for 3 playoff wins, 3 state qualifiers

This year's winter sports teams at Grayling High School – a group of programs that included boys basketball, girls basketball, wrestling, and skiing (boys and girls) – combined for three playoff wins, one district championship, and three state qualifiers.

The boys basketball program, which had three teams this year (varsity, junior varsity, freshman), posted a combined win-loss record of 50-9. Page 1B

New tennis coach expects team to be strong this year

The GHS varsity girls tennis team has several players back from last year, including all three of its top singles players, and the squad's new coach, Mark Sloan, an assistant from last year's team, expects the program to have a successful 2012 season.

"We're a good, strong team," Coach Sloan said. "We're competitive in the conference."

The squad's overall numbers are solid with 19 players. It takes 12 girls to field a full group for a meet (four singles, eight doubles).

Weather, staffing fuel forest fire fears

by Jon Gaskell

Capital News Service

LANSING – Michigan can expect more wildfires this year, officials warn.

The Department of Natural Resources (DNR) is predicting a greater number of forest fires and more acres burned as a result of an unusually warm winter.

To make matters worse, long-term shrinking of firefighting resources has reduced the state's capacity to quell blazes, according to DNR Director Rodney Stokes.

DNR fire supervisor Scott Heather said Michigan is already seeing blazes much earlier than usual.

"Usually for the Lower Peninsula, the season for fires begins around the third week of March," Heather said. "This year, the season started at the beginning of March.

"For the Upper Peninsula, fire season usually begins in early April but we've been seeing fires there already."

So far in 2012, DNR fire officers have responded to 37 wildfires that burned a total of 120 acres. At this point last year, no fires had occurred.

Heather said the risk of wildfire is exacerbated by this winter's lack of snowfall. Without heavy snows to pack them down, tall grasses that fuel fires are primed to ignite.

"These grasses are higher than usual and more exposed than usual," Heather said. "The more surface area and the more oxygen that gets in there, the greater chance that a spark could start a serious fire."

Family attempts to rear arctic grayling in lake located near Clare

by Dan Sanderson

Staff Writer
Area reside

Area residents seeking a "staycation" have an opportunity to learn about a family's efforts to restock arctic grayling in Michigan and honor those who have spearheaded conservation and fly fishing.

The owners of Brookhaven Lake, located about 45 minutes from Grayling just west of Clare, aim to show fly fishers and youth how fishing was in Michigan 142 years ago.

The lake is owned by Michael Johnson and his father Jeff Johnson, who is caretaker for the property.

Michael used money he inherited from his grandfather, George Johnson, who was a homicide detective for the Royal Oak Police Department, to buy the 40 acres of

As a youth, Johnson and his family traveled to Grayling for the fly fishing season. They had a lucky tradition of eating breakfast and dinner at the Grayling Restaurant. It was there where George planted the seed to attempt to bring the arctic grayling back to Michigan as well as superb opportunities to fly fish for brook trout.

"It's a sad state of affairs when the only place a guy can see a grayling in Michigan is a stuffed one hanging on a restaurant wall," Michael recalled his grandfather saying.

In the 1870's the AuSable River became a destination for fisherman worldwide. Trains packed with fisherman would arrive in Grayling, each hoping to spend a week or so along the river. The grayling was renowned both for its beauty and for its voracious appetite. Long leaders with three and even four flies were attached to a line, and often yielded three and even four fish per cast. The number of fish caught and kept was extraordinary, often upwards of 100 fish, per person, per day.

The grayling were eaten, packed in ice, loaded onto railway cars and shipped by the thousands of tons per year to large markets in the cities. In some instances, they were tossed on the banks and buried in mounds.

At the same time, the lumbermen came and cut down centuries-old growth of virgin white pine. The land leading to the rivers was stripped as well, slashed and burned, and the logs were floated downstream to the large mills and cities during the spring runoff. The rivers were cleared of logs and debris, places were the grayling flourished. Shallow riffles were trenched out and deepened, and dams were built so that the flow of the river could controlled. better Vegetation on the banks of the rivers was cleared as well, and the river slowly filled with sand. The sand filled the deepest pools and covered the grayling's spawning beds.

The grayling's eggs stuck to the rocks in the river. Spawning in the spring, their eggs hatched in just two weeks. Their fry are very small, approximately one-fourth of an inch in size and they were not good swimmers at this stage, making them vulnerable to springtime flooding conditions.

The grayling also struggled to coexist with trout, as they were introduced into the AuSable River.

"It's like a caviar meal to go and take them off the rocks," Jeff said. "It wasn't just logging that did them

By 1885, the grayling had disappeared from AuSable River. Over a period of 10 to 20 years, a land unrivaled for its fishing and beauty, became a barren wasteland of stumps and empty pools.

The last known grayling was caught in Michigan in the Upper in Peninsula's Otter River. The State of Michigan stocked 145,000 yearling arctic grayling into 13 inland lakes and seven streams in northern Michigan between 1987 and 1991. Eggs were taken from sources in Wyoming and the Northwest Territories of Canada, where wild grayling still exist. Good survival until age 5 occurred in only one lake, which was closed to fishing, patrolled to detect poachers and held only a few brook trout. Most of the grayling planted in the rivers disappeared withsix months. Michigan Department of Natural Resources chose to discontinue their attempts at stocking grayling Michigan. Recalling the plight of the Grayling, George Johnson used to say, "Even God can't change the past."

After George Johnson passed away in 2010 at the age of 71, his family started pursuing water grayling could be reintroduced.

"Looking back, it was our family's way of staying generationally connected to one another," Michael said.

The family eyed several possibilities in the Upper Peninsula, but that presented a challenge of finding someone to oversee opera-

One of the major obstacles of re-establishing graying was finding a small lake that would stay cold enough even on hot summer days. Grayling are stressed at a temperature of 63 degrees and die at 73 degrees.

After a year a half search, the Johnsons found the lake property located near Clare.

The lake has over 20 flowing cold springs feeding into it from the shore-

"The glaciers had sculpted it out," Jeff said. "It was beautiful water, shaped like a perfect crater."

The Johnsons had two college students catch and net the exiting fish that were in the lake. They did not want to treat to lake with chemicals to keep the food chain of insects and crawfish intact.

The lake was also stocked with Lake Nipigon brook trout from Canada.

The Johnson started with 30,000 arctic grayling eggs, which were kept at a fish hatchery. Only 1,500 of the grayling hatched and survived.

The first graying were introduced into Brookhaven Lake last fall. The Johnsons plan to plant 500 more grayling in the lake this year, in the spring and fall months when cooler temperatures prevail.

"They are kept under scientific, pristine conditions so we are concerned as we are releasing them into the lake," Jeff said. "We're doing this as private citizens. We don't have millions of dollars like the government has to do these projects."

Jeff said the grayling's transparent colorations of violet, silver and red are truly a sight to witness.

"I can't imagine a more graceful fish," he said. "Their colors remind me of a peacock in full plume."

Fishing outings on the lake can be booked for a day or a half day. On other days, the lake is made available to Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and other youth groups at no cost to introduce them to fly fishing and conservation.

"We made it our main goal to invite and encourage up to 400 kids a year to try fly fishing, hoping to hook them for life," Jeff said.

A nature trail, which travels through hardwood and cedar forests, a wetlands area and a trout stream, is on the property for families to

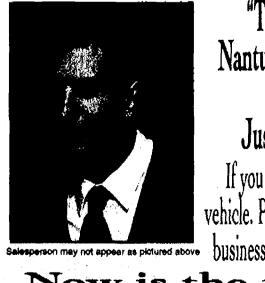

Custom wooden memorial signs, listing the names of people who have made a difference in Michigan's fly fishing heritage, have been placed on the trail.

The trail plays homage to figures who have played a critical role in promoting and preserving the AuSable River such as Chief David Shoppenagon and Rube Babbitt, the first conservation officer in northern Michigan who was credited for planting brook trout in the AuSable River. George Mason and George Griffth, founded Unlimited on the banks for the AuSable River, and William B. Mershon, a conservationist and author of the book "Recollections of My 50 Years of Hunting and Fishing" which is wildly read to outdoorsmen, are also recognized.

Michigan Supreme Court Justice John Voelker, who wrote "Trout Magic" and "Trout Madness" under the pen name Robert Traver, is honored on the nature trail.

More modern figures. including Calvin Gates Sr., an Osocda High School band teacher and musician who ran the Gates AuSable Lodge from 1970 to 1983, and his son, Calvin "Rusty" Gates Jr., who founded the conservation group Anglers of the AuSable, are also recognized.

"Our goal is to create a quiet place to honor our own, the people who took a stand to protect our rivers from exploitation, the writers who penned classic fishing stories that we all enjoy reading during Michigan's long winters and honoring some who just lived and breathed fly fishing," Michael said.

Late-winter storms left forest floors covered with branches said Mike Schira, Michigan State University Extension educator for Houghton and Keweenaw counties.

Without significant rain over the coming weeks, that fuel source could lead to more intense fires than from grasses alone.

Ranger Steve Goldman said the same conditions are present in the million-acre Huron-Manistee National Forest in the northern Lower Peninsula.

"We are getting fires early and in areas where we usually don't see fires," Goldman said. "This year the season started early, it started hotter and it started dryer. It's going to be a challenging year."

Goldman said he is especially concerned about limbs and branches blown down from recent storms. Not only can they cause more intense and dangerous crown fires, but they often impede access for fire crews trying to put out blazes.

"When you get these large branches, they serve as a ladder for the fire to climb to the crown of trees," Goldman said. "They are also blocking a lot of the access we would need to get equipment to fires.

"A crew can suppress a ground fire quickly if it gets there in time, but once it gets to be a crown fire and the flames reach 30-100 feet, nothing can stop it. We would be forced to evacuate the area."

If wildfires are a serious problem this year, the DNR may lack the resources to combat them. According to Heather, the department has made steady cuts to fire officers over the past 15 years, going from 83 in 1997 to only 54 now.

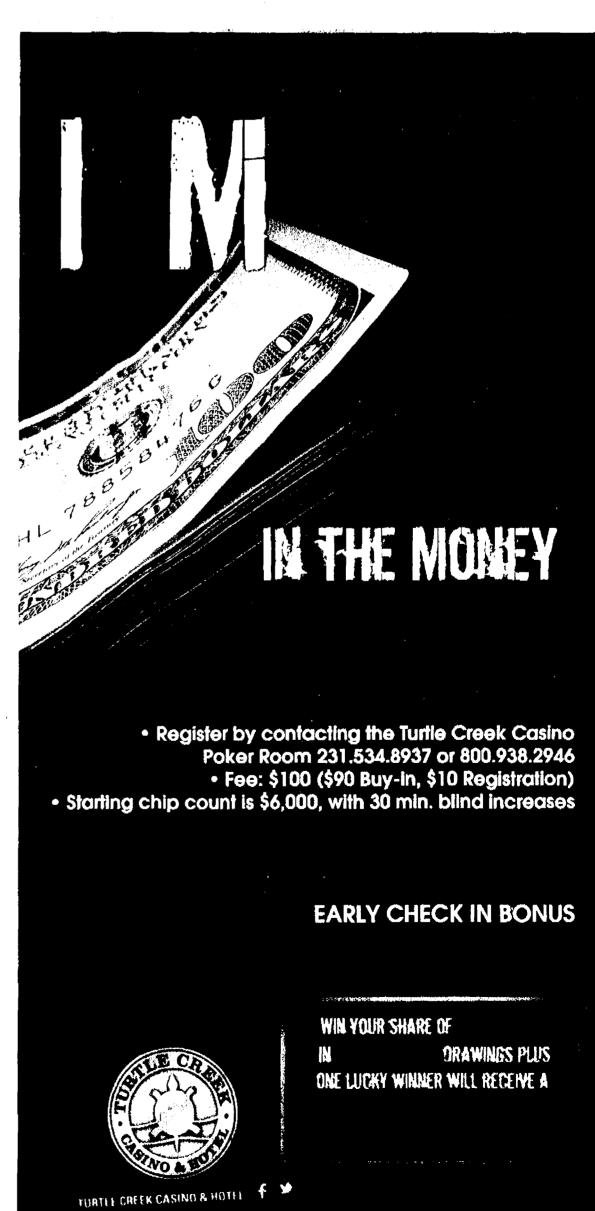

"In 1997, we not only had more officers, we would bring in 42 temporary officers to help during spring fire season. Now we have no seasonal help.

"What usually happens is Heather said.

Heather said.

when conditions are right, there are multiple fires in different areas of the state. Not only do we have fewer officers to deal with the fires, we have closed several field offices. That means a longer dispatch time and a delay in getting to the fires,"

"We are stretched thin,"

FORD MOTOR Company President .Alan Mulally was paid more money than any other automobile manufacturing leader during 2011, according to tabulations of auto CEO compensation reported recently.

According to reports, Mr. Mulally was paid only $2 million in salary plus $5.46 million in a cash bonus, while other perks including stock options took his total compensation package to $29.5 million last year.

That's only a tad higher than what Mr. Mulally received the year before. For 2010, his compensation package was $26.5 million, an increase of about 11 percent for the 2011, which likely is a higher percentage wage increase than most folks received last year.

Others on the higher end of the auto CEO 2011 compensation scale included Martin Winterkorn of Volkswagon ($23 million), Earlier this year, an outstanding football player named Calvin Johnson signed a contract with the Detroit Lions franchise that will earn him $132 million over the next eight years.

That comes out to about $16.5 million a year in salary, compared with Mr. Mulally's take of $7.6 million in cash for 2011 ser-

For the balance of Mr. Mulally's total income, the Ford Motor Company must sell enough products to increase the value of the company stock enough to cover the CEO's total compensation package.

The Detroit Lions, on the other hand, are not required to win a single game this season, and Mr. Johnson does not have to catch even one pass to assure that he will be paid his $16.5 million. That's the case for the next seven years, too.

In a way, both Alan Mulally and Calvin Johnson work for the same bosses, because members of the Ford family own controlling interest in both auto making and football playing enter-

Maybe if the automobile Fords could convince the auto company president to take a pay cut for the next year or two, the football Fords could have enough money to search for another player or two of Calvin Johnson's caliber and assure a Super Bowl trophy to put in the Ford Family Trophy

WHICH IS the real world - the world of commerce, or the world of sports?

Both auto magnate Mulally and football star Johnson are surpassed in the paycheck department by a baseball player named Prince Fielder, who a couple months ago was contracted by the Detroit Tigers to be paid $217 million to play baseball for them for the next nine years.

That comes out to about $23 million each year for Mr. Fielder, which is as much or more than total annual compensation for the four other automobile CEOs cited above. Again, Prince Fielder gave no guarantee that he will bring a World Series to Detroit or that he will hit any home runs at all in any of the next nine years, and he still will get the money.

THEN TAKE a look at college athletics, supposed to be on a non-professional

As for salary/bonus only, which comes out to $7.46 million for Alan Mulally at Ford last year, pay for football Coach Nick Saban at University of Alabama is somewhere in the $5 to $7 million range, and several other big time college football coaches, when all additional compensation is included, are not far behind.

Basketball is played with five players on each team on the floor at one time, and with total squads that range from 15 to 20 players in all, but the pay for big time basketball coaches also nears the stratosphere.

According to a ranking by USA Today, Coach John Calipari of University of Kentucky is the highest paid college basketball coach in the country, with total annual pay of just under $5.4 million plus possible bonuses of $850,000.

Among the 12 universities in the Big Ten, six basketball coaches are paid between $2.175 million and $3.598 million, plus possible bonuses, usually set by team performance, ranging from $200,000 to $900,000

Professional team coaches, both football and basketball, generally are paid even to be added.

SO WHICH is the real world? The world of big time commerce, or the world of big time sports?

For a young man or woman taking early steps on the career path these days, be very the world of big time sports would be very tempting.

It probably would be much more fun, too.

Officers involved did exactly as they were trained

To the editor:

A letter to the editor in last week's paper suggested that local police officers needed more training in light of the recent tragedy. I respectfully disagree.

Coming from someone who's been there personally (42 years in the law enforcement vocation), I must assert that the officers involved did exactly as they were trained. At no point in my training (from Military Police school through Michigan basic academy, advance academy and numerous in-service schools) did any one of my training officers ever suggest or advocate that a threat of lethal force should be met with anything less than lethal force.

One who threatens with a knife is making a threat of lethal Since 1921, seven Michigan law enforcement officers have been stabbed to death. (Source: Officer Down Memorial Page

Why so many corrections officers? Possibly because correction officers are not allowed to carry weapons capable of a lethal response within a correctional

I never met or known any officer who was happy to be placed into a deadly force situation. However, a threat from a subject wielding a knife is a deadly threat. The Taser is not meant to be a disarming device. What is seen on TV and in movies does not reflect real life.

This situation was investigated by an outside agency and the officer's response found to be justified and in accordance with their training. The investigators know and understand the dynamics of a deadly force situation and know and understand how officers are trained to respond to deadly force.

Our local officers receive training as any other police officer from any agency in the State of Michigan. Training is constantly up-dated and is conducted by qualified professionals in the profession. I am confident that today's officers have received the best training possible and are the highest caliber officers available to serve our community.

I hope that our officers never have to face a deadly threat again.

Finally, I hope that this letter is not misinterpreted and that someone would think I don't feel sorrow for Mr. Reddie and his family over this tragic event. My heartfelt condolences go out to his family, and I, too, hope and pray that a tragedy like this never happens again.

What the people who came up with these proposals chose to ignore is that Crawford County and Grayling especially is in the midst of a terrible economy. This community is made up of many senior citizens, who are on a fixed income and are struggling to make ends meet. Add high gas prices to the equation for people who need to travel to get to work. Feral cats are not domestic cats domesticated cat that has returned to the wild. It is distinguished from a stray cat, which is a pet cat that has been lost or abandoned, while feral cats are born in the wild; the offspring of a stray cat can be considered feral if born in the wild. Feral cats that are born and living outdoors, without any human contact or care, have been shown to be adoptable and can be tamed by humans, provided they are removed from a wild environment. The lifespan of feral cats is hard to determine accurately, although one study reported a median age of 4.7 years. For contrast, in captivity, an average life expectancy for male indoor cats at birth is 12 to 14 years, with females usually living a year or two longer. Some of Mrs. Guay's neighbors are claiming Keepers and caretakers provide a valuable service, and the · law should not discourage these individuals from caring for animals in need. I have contacted several feral cat caretakers who are also non-profit and licensed by the State of Michigan. They will not come forward because they are afraid of their townships doing what Beaver Creek Township is doing - killing cats. The Lodge, a Bed and Breakfast, a ski resort, a golf course, and a church, all within hollering distance of Mrs. Guay's home, are not home-based businesses. The court says Mrs. Guay does not fit the bill of being a homedamage was done by the feral cat based business.

Funny thing is, Mrs. Guay went to the Beaver Creek Township board before she started Leaning Oaks Cat Haven and Rescue to ask if there were any regulations against her actions. The board told her there were no regulations for her to meet so she proceeded to get a license by the State of Michigan Department of Agriculture for a feral cat colony. Politicians can flip-flop I guess. Are there any residents out there willing to help with these cats, Mrs. Guay's attorney fees, feed, and litter? What do you think should these cats be returned to the wild or killed? How about all the dog breeders and people who raise a few rabbits? Should Beaver Creek go kill them too? What are we allowed to do inside our own homes?

Anglers of the AuSable to mark 25th anniversary

In 1987, the pristine and beloved AuSable River was under great pressure, which over the years was causing stress on the blue-ribbon trout stream.

The late Calvin "Rusty" Gates, who owned a fly fishing shop and guide service on the river, recognized the threats and founded a cold-water conservation group known as the Anglers of the AuSable.

This year the group, which numbers over 600 members, will celebrate 25 years of conserving and preserving this watershed, protecting it for future generations.

Many battles have been fought and won, from drilling incursions along its banks, to canoe and fishing regulations, and expansion of open waters year-round for fly fishing, to name a few. There are many new battles to be fought, to protect the river.

In honor of the years past, and the years to come, the Anglers of the AuSable are celebrating their silver anniversary with a banquet on the opening day of trout season, April 28.

To be held at the Otsego Club in Gaylord, the evening will have a live auction, silent auction, raffles and a special dinner.

Entertainment and great fellowship will highlight the evening, along with rare and wonderful auction items to bid upon.

Tickets are still available, but hurry, since seating is limited.

Contact Karen Harrison at wwgc@frontier.com, or visit the Anglers of the website AuSable http:www/ausableanglers.o rg/i4a/pages/index.cfm?pag ed=1 for ticket information.

Robson, who is also a local resident, shares, "I first got involved out of curiosity. Due to unexpected changes in my life, couponing quickly became a necessity. I am excited to share my "secrets of couponing" with everyone who enrolls in this class. Unlike the television series, I do not teach extreme couponing. My goal is to teach people real life couponing secrets to help you knock 50 - 100 percent off your shopping budget."

Anyone interested in learning more about the "Secrets of Couponing" is encouraged to enroll quickly as the class is expected to fill up quickly. "People who attend should find that a little time invested will create the opportunity for large savings in your family's grocery budget," said Robson.

How to keep your car running for years longer than most

(ARA) - While there's no getting around the price you have to pay for a new automobile, there are plenty of things you can do to make sure you won't have to make the same investment again anytime soon.

By doing the little things to maintain your car on a day-to-day basis, you can do everything in your power to make your car last long past the day you make your final payment on that car loan.

"Time and miles are the two forces fighting to destroy every car," says Tom Taylor, engineer and president vice RockAuto.com. "Giving the car an occasional wash and wax is nice but really not as important as regular maintenance. Driving and maintaining your car as if it needs to last for at least 200,000 miles or 20 years is a smart way to preserve the value of an expensive asset."

garage, make it your car's permanent home. Reserving a garage space for your car instead of household items that could be stored elsewhere will help you avoid the accelerated wear and tear caused by prolonged exposure to the elements.

If you store your car in a partially protected carport or use a car cover, regularly inspect underneath your hood for signs of vermin. "I recently needed to replace a fuel injector connector that a rat gnawed off our 20-year-old family van after it was left unattended in a carport for just a few days," says Taylor. "Rats and mice like a nice warm engine bay and they chew constantly to wear down their ever-growing teeth."

Scheduled maintenance - Your car's maintenance, engine oil, radiator antifreeze and other components might differ significantly from your last Storage - If you have a car. Following the maintenance schedule laid out in your owner's manual is important to protect your vehicle. Making sure items like filters, struts and brake pads are replaced when needed will help protect other components, saving you money and unnecessary wear.

Drive smart Occasionally kicking up your heels is fine, but consistently accelerating too fast can put unnecessary strain on your engine and moving parts. other Stopping or cornering too quickly can prematurely wear out your brakes and suspension. If you're starting your car in the cold, take it easy at first - letting your car idle won't help protect your car, but driving a little more methodically than usual while your car warms up will.

Drive less - You don't need to cut out the annual family road trip - highway miles are among the easiest miles you can put on your car. But eliminating unnecessary trips in everyday life can have noticeable results since the starting and stopping associated with short trips can be tough on your car. Take care of all your errands inone trip, walk with your kids to school if it's close to home or ride the bus to and from work. If you can cut down on driving by 5 miles per day for 10 years, you'll save 18,000 miles of driving. Taylor estimates that those miles are worth $4,000 in parts, depreciation and gas. Not only will you save money, but you'll also put less stress on your vehicle, which should extend its lifespan. When shopping for a new car, you might be able to save hundreds of dollars by comparison shopping and finding the best price. But good maintenance and driving practices can save. you thousands if it means you won't have to buy another car for 20 years.

Price vs. value: When is it worth the upgrade?

(ARA) - In today's economy, people want to know how they can keep their vehicles on the road for longer periods of time. Frequent maintenance will keep your car in good health, ensuring you get the most out of all those expensive-to-replace according to the Car Care Council. When does it make sense to upgrade to a premium automotive product?

That's a question that stumps a lot of people when confronted with the wide range of prices for seemingly comparable products. Here are a few tips on common automotive product categories to help you make informed decisions.

Gasoline: Engines are designed to use a particular grade/octane of gasoline. While some auto manufacturers specify using a highoctane gasoline, some consumers purchase the higher octane gasoline based on the assumption that it's better for the car. However, there is no benefit in using a higher octane than recommended by the manufacturer. In fact, if you paid 40 cents a gallon extra to purchase super premium gas as opposed to regular, that would cost you an additional $320 a year (assuming 12,000 miles driven and 15 miles per gallon).

The bottom line: Don't use a higher octane rating than recommended by the car's manufacturer.

Motor oil: Lubrication technology has seen significant improvements over the years. The longer oil life of high-performance synthetic motor oil allows for extended oil drains, saving time and money, and reducing the impact on the environment. Additionally, some high-performance synthetic oils have been reported to improve mileage as much as 3 percent or more. Three percent may not seem like a substantial amount, but it can result in hundreds of dollars in savings over the course of a year.

The bottom line: Upgrade to a high-performance synthetic motor oil for extended oil drains and improved fuel econo-

Wiper blades: Where you live is the critical factor in determining the value of upgrading to a premium wiper. There is a noticeable performance difference in low-cost wiper blades versus those specifically designed for rainy and snowy climates. Premium wiper blades are considerably sturdier and more durable than low priced blades.

The bottom line: Rainy and snowy climates justify spending a few dollars more for premium wiper blades.

Oil filters: Inexpensive filters are typically made with the 3,000 mile interval in mind. These filters often use low-quality paper media for filtration and deteriorate rapidly after 3,000 miles. The new generation of high-performance premium oil filters allow for extended oil drain intervals. For example, filters that use a proprietary long-life, micro-glass media provides protection for 12,000 miles. It also provides an increased level of protection due to the density of the filtration.

The bottom Upgrade to a premium oil filter if you plan to extend oil drain intervals or if you operate your vehicle in extreme conditions such as dusty environments or cold weather climates.

Adapt your vehicle and driving habits to combat rising gas prices

(ARA) -Just as Americans are gearing up for warm-weather road trips and family vacations, prices at the gas pump are rising. For most people, driving is essential for getting to work, taking kids to school and going out to have some fun, so filling up the tank is a non-negotiable expense. However, costs add up quickly as fuel prices climb higher, taking up more of your budget.

If you want to keep your plans in place and your spending on track, it's important to be smart about fuel consumption. Not everyone can afford to buy a new, ultra-fuel-efficient car, so making adjustments to your existing vehicle - and your driving habits - can help you stretch the dollars you spend at the pump.

* Drive mindfully: If you're used to speeding up fast and braking at the last moment, you need to reconsider how you're operating your vehicle - those habits can drain your gas tank and send you back to the pump more often. Instead, make a conscious effort to accelerate and slow down gradually and use cruise control to maintain a constant speed, all of which will help to use fuel more efficiently. When possible, avoid idling and make plans for running errands, to cut down on the number of trips you take.

* Reduce drag: If you drive a truck, smoothing out the aerodynamics of your truck with a truck bed cover or a tonneau cover can make a big difference in fuel consumption. Covers can be added easily with clamp-on installation and can be rolled up behind the cab when not in use.

* Choose wisely: You're typically given three options at the pump, with a trio of gasolines with different octane levels - and different prices. One of the simplest ways to cut costs is to opt for the lowest octane fuel that you can use in your vehicle. Making this change can save you hundreds of dollars per year, without sacrificing performance or gas mileage.

* Give your vehicle a check-up: Maintenance and mileage can go hand in hand, so it's important to make sure that your car is in shape for saving fuel. Check and change your oil regularly - it's an essential component in reducing wear caused by friction between moving parts in the engine. If it's not clean, or if levels are low, your vehicle won't be performing as efficiently as possible. Equally important to getting good mileage is the air pressure in your tires, which should be at the manufacturer's recommended levels (often listed on the driver's side door frame). inflation Proper improve your gas mileage by up to 3 percent. A check of the air, oil and fuel filters should also be included in a check-up.

Making adjustments to your vehicle and the way you drive can be the best way to save yourself from going over budget on gasoline. Start with these tips and you'll be able to enjoy the season the way you want

Spring is the season for auto care

(NewsUSA) - After a season of winter driving, a springtime check-up for your car might be in order. Most anyone can do routine automotive housekeeping chores: Remove unneeded winter gear from your trunk, clean out trash and clutter, and wash and wax your car to remove accumulated grime and salt deposits. The experts at the non-profit National Institute Automotive Service Excellence (ASE) offer the following advice for more ambitious automotive proj-

• Read the owner's manual and follow the recommended service schedules. • If you are not a do-itorderly repair shop with modern equipment in the service bays and qualified automotive technicians as evidenced by trade school diplomas, certificates of advanced courses and ASE certifications.

• Have engine performance problems - hard starts, rough idling, stalling - corrected now, before summer's demanding stop-andgo vacation traffic.

• For comfort in hot weather now's the time, too, to have a marginally working air conditioning system serviced.

• Flush and refill the cooling system according to the service manual's recommendations. The level, condition, and concentration of the coolant should be checked periodically. (Make sure the engine has cooled down before removing the radiator cap.)

• A qualified auto technician should check the tightness and condition of belts, clamps and hoses, but you can look for signs of wear, cracking, or fraying.

· Replace other filters (air, fuel, PCV, etc.) as recommended in the service

· Check the condition of tires, including the spare. Let the tires "cool down" before checking their pressure. Uneven wear, "cupping," vibrations, "pulling" to one side indicates problems with your tires or suspension system.

If applicable, have snow tires pulled and replaced with seasonal tires.

· Change the oil and oil filter as specified in owner's manual. Often neglected, this simple service is one of the easiest ways to extend the life of your vehicle.

ASE was founded to improve the quality of automotive service and repair through the voluntary testing and certification of automotive technicians. ASEcertified technicians wear blue and white shoulder insignia and carry credentials listing their exact area(s) of certification. Their employers often display the blue and white ASE

yourselfer, look for an Don't tread water this national car care month (NewsUSA) - Spring showers bring May flowers, but they may also bring slippery driving conditions and decreased visibility. When it's wet, a braking car needs up to four times its regular stopping distance. Worn tires can cause cars to hydroplane, or skim over the road with little or no traction, which can lead to dost control. In honor of April's National Car Care Month, drivers should take a few minutes to prepare their cars for spring showers.

According to Firestone Complete Auto Care, proper tire maintenance is a relatively simple task and can help drivers stay safer on nance is to check the tire pressure with an accurate tire gauge at least once a month. This should be done when the vehicle has been driven less than one mile or has been sitting for at least three hours. The recommended air pressure for a vehicle is listed on the sticker on the door jamb, fuel filler lid, glove box or trunk or in the owner's manual.

In addition to checking the inflation pressure, drivers should have their tires, including tread depth, inspected regularly by an ASE Certified automotive professional. Wheel alignment should be checked annually, and tires should be owner's manual. Proper wheel alignment and rotation will help tires roll more smoothly, which increase traction, mileage and tire life. Don't wait for a rain storm to check your lights and wipers. Make a habit of checking both at regular intervals, when the weather is good -- like when you fill up at the gas station. Seeing and being seen are critical anytime, but especially while driving in the rain. Functioning lights are important not only for your ability to see, they'll help other drivers see your vehicle. Windshield wipers should be replaced at the first signs of trouble, like tion, in order to provide the best visibility while on the Proper vehicle maintenance may increase traction and visibility during a rain storm, but good driving behaviors, like slowing down and using caution, are also very important. Although the rain will go away, it will come again another day - be prepared.

The Bible Speaks

American Warning?

Jonathan Cahn has written a powerful book entitled The Harbinger – The Ancient Mystery That Holds The Secret Of America's Future. He applies the prophecy given to the Jews in Israel 2,500 years ago to Christians in America today: "8The Lord sent a word into Jacob, and it hath lighted upon Israel. 9And all the people shall know, even Ephraim and the inhabitant of Samaria, that say in the pride and stoutness of heart, 10The bricks are fallen down, but we will build with hewn stones: the sycamores are cut down, but we will change them into cedars." (Isaiah 9:8-10). Israel did not heed God's prophecy and lost their freedom.

America became a fully constituted nation on April 30, 1789 when George Washington was sworn in with his hand on the Bible to become our first president. A dark bronze statue of Washington remains at the very same location on Wall Street facing the New York Stock Exchange. President Washington led the U. S. Senate and House of Representatives on foot to St. Paul's Chapel where their first act of government business was a prayer to God for the dedication and protection of America. The following words were a part of President Washington's prayer: "The propitious smiles of Heaven can never be expected on a nation that disregards the eternal rules of order and right which Heaven itself hath ordained."

Isaiah's prophecy was fulfilled when Israel refused to repent and turn to God after the nation of Assyria attacked her. Israel said in her, "...pride and stoutness of heart, 10The bricks are fallen down, but we will build with hewn stones: the sycamores are cut down, but we will change them into cedars."

Cahn reminds us that American leaders quoted Isaiah 9:10 after the 9/11 attacks on the World Trade Towers. The very field belonging to St. Chapel Paul's Americans dedicated this nation to God, became ground zero where the Twin Towers were destroyed. A symbolic cornerstone was placed at ground zero. It was a twentyton rectangular block of quarried stone named "Freedom Stone." "10The bricks are fallen down, but we will build with hewn stones..." After a few years of failure to rebuild, the symbolic stone was removed. Plans were underway to build a new tower called, The Freedom Tower.

Cahn also reminds us that the birth of the New York Stock Exchange took place where 24 merchants usually met under a buttonwood or English Sycamore tree to conduct their business. There was also a sycamore tree beside St. Paul's Chapel before 9/11. The implosion and flying debris from the Twin Towers uprooted the tree, but the tree protected St. Paul's Chapel. The uprooted sycamore was replaced by a large cedar on the same site; "....the sycamores are cut down, but we will change them into cedars.'

The Assyrians who enslaved the 10 northern tribes of Israel spoke Akkadian of which the closest language today is Arabic. Their capital was Nineveh whose ruins are still visible today in Mosul, Iraq. The Assyrians were the fathers of terrorism and the spiritual fathers of Al Qaeda. "14If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land." Work crew is raising the roof at courthouse Employees from Great Lakes Roofing and Insulation System, Inc., who have a branch location in Grayling, started replacing the roof at the Crawford County Courthouse over the weekend. The Crawford County Board of Commissioners awarded the job to the roofing firm in February for a cost of $146,130. A portion of the funds to pay for the project is coming from the county's courthouse preservation fund. The fund is built up by fees tacked onto traffic tickets for the purpose of maintaining the courthouse building. Above, a Great Lakes Roofing and Insulation System, Inc. employee removes existing roofing materials off the building.

Casey was recognized for going above and beyond his regular duties as a sports writer for the newspaper. The school district's students and parents said they appreciate the section Casey created on the Crawford County Avalanche website, crawfordcountyavalanche.com, which contains numerous photos he has taken of students at games, practices and tournaments. The photos allow the students an opportunity to create their own scrapbooks with pictures of themselves and to post them on Facebook. Outlook for Forest Dunes looks promising under new ownership

by Dan Sanderson Staff Writer

With a new owner and management team in place, the Forest Dunes Golf Club is ready to take another swing at economic viability and boosting local tourism dollars.

The South Branch Planning Township Commissioners recently approved changes for the planned unit development at Forest Dunes.

One of the main changes approved by planners was construction of a two-story, 22-room hotel. The hotel, which is estimated to cost $1.2 million to $2 million, will be built next to the Forest Dunes Clubhouse, said Todd Campbell, the general manager for Forest Dunes.

"It's definitely needed," Campbell said. "It's something that we need for our stay and play packages for our consumers and golfers. It will complete the whole golfing experience."

Last October, Lew Thompson, a Huntsville, Ark. trucking executive, bought Forest Dunes.

Thompson purchased the 1,300 acre golf community from the Carpenters Pension Trust Fund, one of the original investors in the development.

Developers from Scottsdale, Ariz. firm began developing Forest Dunes in 1998 at estimated cost of $38 million.

But after over two years of legal and financial battles, the Carpenters Pension Trust Fund assumed ownership of the course.

The trust fund opened Forest Dunes in 2002.

Forest Dunes is ranked 45 on Golf Magazine's list of the nation's Top 100 courses. Readers of Golf World magazine selected it as the top public course in the country. It is No. 18 on Golf Digest magazine's list of the 100 greatest public courses in America, and is a perennial choice on Golf Week's list of their top 100 modern courses in the country. Forest Dunes earned a Gold Signature Certification from Audubon International for its efforts to protect the AuSable River.

Despite receiving the accolades, operations at the golf club have struggled financially.

Thompson previously acquired The Bridge, which is located in Montrose, Colo. for $3 million in April 2010. It was struggling with only 40 members and had a checkered history.

Thompson has since increased membership to more than 140, tripled wedding bookings and started selling home sites around

Thompson plans to duplicate that success at Forest Dunes.

"I am hoping to bring some stability to the place and attract more members," Thompson said. "We have a great product here and we will give the kind of service that people will want to be a member for."

Members of The Bridges will now have reciprocal privileges at Forest Dunes

Plans call for breaking ground for construction of the hotel in June or July. The hotel will be in full operation in April 2013 in time for the opening of the spring golfing season.

Currently, Forest Dunes is hiring its workforce of over 100 employees, who will staff the golf course, the clubhouse and Sangamore Restaurant.

Campbell said the outlook for Forest Dunes is already looks promising.

"We're excited about the upcoming season and our bookings are already up from the same time last year," Campbell said.

Campbell comes to Forest Dunes from the Spring Brook Resort in the Wisconsin Dells, where he was the general manager since 2009. Prior to that, Campbell worked 17 years as a key executive at Garland Resort located near Lewiston.

Campbell is part of a whole new management team for the golf club and real estate development.

"We're ramping up for a great season and we are really excited about the opportunities we have," Campbell said.

Campbell said adding the hotel will be a big plus.

"We're excited about not only being able to add the hotel, but the jobs it will create," Campbell said.

Along with approving the construction of the hotel, South Branch Township also changed some of the lots in the planned unit development for Forest Dunes.

There are seven homes for sale in the development and 105 lots are finished and ready for sale. Phase two of the project allows for the development of at least 200 additional lots.

Chris Jones, chairman of the South Branch Township Planning Commission, said seeing development at Forest Dunes come to fruiting gives the local economy a much needed shot in the

"It's great," Jones said. "Forest Dunes is a very nice area and building the hotel will be nice because it will give people who come in to play golf a place to stay and it's nice for the township because it adds to the tax rolls."

Chamber Ambassador's Club spotlights Medicine Shoppe Pharmacy

Medicine Shoppe Pharmacy received the Grayling Regional Chamber of Commerce Ambassador's Club Spotlight-a-Member Award for March. Pictured above are employees from the Medicine Shoppe Pharmacy with Michele Steffey, owner/manager holding the award.

The Medicine Shoppe Pharmacy, located at 500 N. James St. Grayling, was selected as the Grayling Regional Chamber of Commerce Ambassador's Club Spotlight-a-Member award recipient for March.

The Medicine Shoppe began in 1999. Michele R.Ph. and Jeff R.Ph. Steffey are both owners, Michele is the working manager.

"We opened the pharmacy 12 1/2 years ago to provide pharmaceutical care that focused mainly on health care needs," said Michele. "Our motto is: "Caring Beyond Prescriptions" and that says it all. There is so much more to pharmacy than just counting pills. We believe in treating our patients like family and we go that extra mile to help them in any way needed?"

"Our three sons have grown up in the pharmacy and are now all in college. They have all had a wonderful experience in the Grayling school system and understand why we support our community as we do," said Michele.

The Medicine Shoppe fills prescription and non-prescription medications. They work closely with providers to be sure their patients are using the medications appropriately.

The Medicine Shoppe is the only pharmacy in Grayling that financially participates in the "Yellow Jug Old Drugs" program. This program is operated by Great Lakes Clean Water Organization. They collect and properly dispose of unwanted/unused drugs (except controlled substances) in a safe and approved manner to help keep our water clean.

The Medicine Shoppe has a "Pay it Forward" program that started when Michele loaned out an elevated toilet seat, free of charge to a patient in need of it for only a few weeks. After the patient's recovery, they returned not only the seat but also a pair of crutches. Over time, the inventory has grown and continues to provide much needed equipment to patients in need at no charge. They also loan out wheelchairs, walkers, shower seats, transfer benches and more.

They will shortly begin a major remodel and renovation that will include the installation of a drive through window.

They employ five staff members, Mike R.Ph., Kristie, Marty, Angie, and Ana. They have been a Chamber member for 12 years.

WEST BRANCH, MI

Kirtland announces 2012-13 tuition and fee rate increases

At their March 22 regular meeting, Kirtland Community College's Board of Trustees approved tuition and fee rates for the 2012-13 school year, which will be effective beginning with the summer term. A tuition increase of approximately 6.5 percent is necessary to offset declining revenue and enrollment projections and increasing insurance, retirement and heating/energy costs.

Kirtland's funding formula is based on a combination of property tax revenue, state and federal aid, and student tuition fees, resulting in an annual operating budget of approximately $15,800,000. The following projections provided the data necessary to determine the tuition and fee rate increases:

• 3.5 percent decline in property tax revenue (approximately -$300,000)

• 8 percent to 10 percent decline in enrollment (approximately -$350,000)

 Increasing health insurance and retirement contribution costs (approximately $380,000)

• Rising health/energy (approximately costs $150,000)

As state appropriations to decline, continue Kirtland's dependency on tuition charges has risen sharply in the last 10 years, from 27 percent (2000) to 45 percent of total revenue (2011). "Declining revenues dictate that there will be increased dependence on tuition revenues. Other community colleges throughout the state will be considering similar, if not higher, increases," said Kirtland Community College President Dr. Thomas Quinn.

Even with the approved tuition and fee increases. Kirtland administrators still face the daunting task of identifying an additional $900,000 in cuts in order to present a balanced budget to the Board of Trustees for approval at the May 19 regular meeting. A portion of the increase is allocated to the development of several new programs including Health Information Technologies, Vascular Sonography and Grant Writing, which are all available entirely online. Mechatronics, a new facilities and industrial technology program designed to merge mechanical and electrical skills, will be offered at Kirtland's M-TEC/Gaylord location and has been identified as one of ten emerging technologies in the United States.

"It is important to note that Kirtland is not cutting services. We recognize it is important to maintain services knowing that our citizens want and need affordable educational opportunities close to home," added Quinn. "Kirtland's tuition is still low and extremely competitive. We are affordable and provide a wide range of high-demand, relevant programs designed to get students the skills they need to be successful in a career or when transferring to a four-year college or university.

In other action, the Board of Trustees approved a construction package authorizing the start of renovation work on the new West Branch facility located on M-76 near the I-75 Business Loop. In addition to housing Kirtland's signature Surgery Technology program, the new West Branch facility will offer expanded general education course offerings. "We understand the challenge students face with rising costs in a struggling economic climate. Students can now save money in gas and travel expenses and take advantage of a larger selection of courses closer to home," states Quinn.

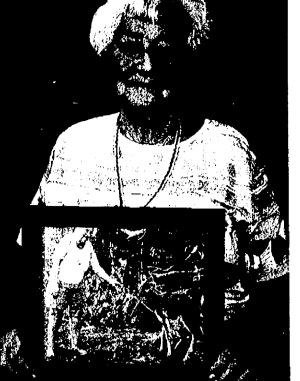

In a 5-2 vote, the Board also approved a one-year extension of the college's athletics program. And, at the next regular meeting on April 19, the Board will continue to consider a committee recommendation to institute a campus-wide tobacco free policy and review the possible suspension of low-enrollment certificate programs.

Winter sports teams combine for three playoff wins, three state qualifiers

This year's winter sports teams at Grayling High School – a group of programs that included boys basketball, girls basketball, wrestling, and skiing (boys and girls) – combined for three playoff wins, one district championship, and three state qualifiers.

The boys basketball program, which had three teams this year (varsity, junior varsity, freshman), posted a combined win-loss record of 50-9.

The varsity squad had a 16-4 regular season record, won two playoff games to clinch its second consecutive district championship, and finished second in the Lake Michigan Conference with an 11-3 mark in league play.

"Our team has had a fine season. I am proud of the way that they have battled all season long," Coach Rich Moffit said.

The JV boys basketball team won 18 of its 20 games and the freshman squad finished at 14-2.

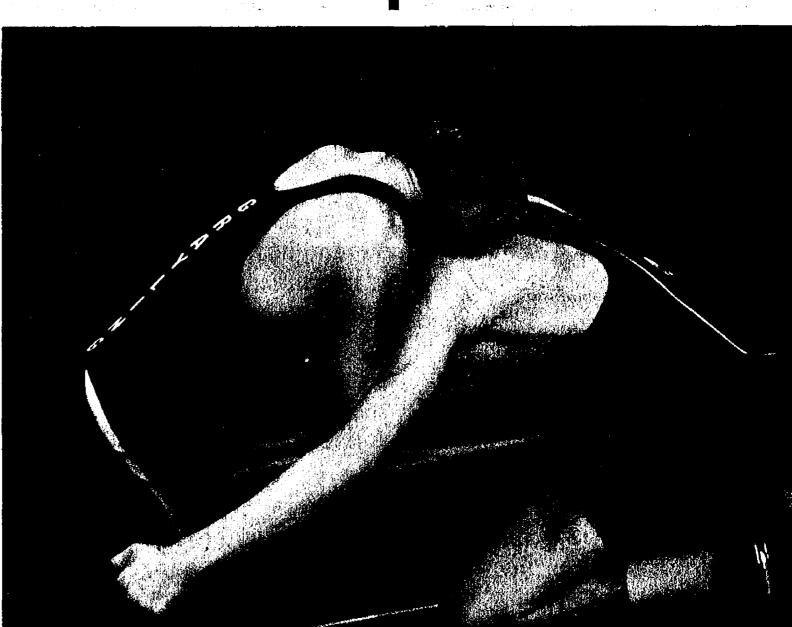

The GHS varsity girls basketball team won eight games, including one in the playoffs. Grayling made it to the district championship game for the second season in a row.

"Our girls showed a tremendous amount of improvement. We were extremely young with only three girls returning with significant experience. We're looking forward to next year because we gained a huge amount of experience," Coach Joe Powers said.

The varsity wrestling team took second place in the Lake Michigan Conference this year. The Vikings had six regional qualifiers and three state qualifiers. One of them – Brandon Handrich (152), a junior – placed at the finals, finishing fifth.

The ski teams finished third (girls) and fourth (boys) in the Lake Michigan Conference. The squads did not have a state qualifier this year.

Youth hunting may boost state's economy

by Jennifer Chen Capital News Service

LANSING - More turkey hunting licenses will be issued this year to lure young people outdoors, a step which may help improve the state's economy said Rodney Stokes, director of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

A new $7.50 mentored youth hunting license package started on March 1, according to the DNR. The spring turkey season which runs from April 25 to May

"It is a good way to teach children about the importance of conserving the state's unmatched natural resources and ensure the hunting tradition continues to thrive," Stokes said.

The new mentoring program will eliminate the minimum hunting age and let parents decide if and when their child is ready to hunt. The change is geared toward parents and other adult mentors who want to teach children younger than 10 how to hunt, trap and fish, according to the DNR.

"We hope our children can go outside and enjoy the amazing nature of Michigan rather than just sit on the couch and play with the computer. Hunting is the best way to achieve it," Stokes said.

Nationally, nearly 2.8 million turkey hunting licenses are sold every year, to Brent according Lawrence, public relations and web director at the National Wild Turkey Federation in Edgefield, S.C.

"Wild turkey numbers remain strong nationwide, with an estimated population of 7 million turkeys across North America," Lawrence said. "Michigan is home to some of the best turkey hunting in the upper Midwest, with huntable populations in most counties including the Upper Peninsula."

New youth licensing procedures coincide with a newly passed bill, sponsored by Sen. Darwin Booher, R-Evart, requiring a specific license to hunt turkey. The fee would be $15 per resident and $69 for a non-resident.

The bill is a promise to turkey hunters that if they are willing to purchase a special license, the proceeds would be used to manage wild turkeys across their entire range, according to the Michigan Wild Hunters Turkey Association.

The other sponsors are Sen. Goeff Hansen, R-Hart, Sen, Mike Green, R-Mayville, Sen. John Proos, R-Lansing, Sen. Marleau, R-Lake Orion and Sen. Tom Casperson, R-Escanaba.

The bill is awaiting action by Gov. Rick Snyder.

And regardless of age, the DNR strongly suggests parents have their children attend a hunting safety course.

"Our department provides various hunting safety education programs and people can find related courses online." Stokes

According to a report from the Congressional Sportsmen's Foundation in Washington, hunting generates nearly $25 billion a year in federal, state and local revenue. Also, there are more than 19,500 jobs supported by hunting in Michigan alone.

Federal excise taxes and state license revenue have helped bring back dozens of species, including wild turkeys, the foundation said. Fewer than 100,000 wild turkeys remained in the nation in 1900, but now there are more than 7 mil-

Jim Maturen, president of the Pere Marquette chapter of the Michigan Wild Hunters Turkey Association, said turkey hunting is a boon for the state's businesses, especially in the spring season.

"Having more turkey hunters will definitely support local business because they need equipment," Maturen said.

Also, turkey hunting will boost tourism and help children better understand the environment, he said.

More information about youth licenses can be found at http://www.michigan.gov

The GHS varsity tennis team practiced indoors at the Grayling Middle School before getting outside. The squad's first meet is slated for April 10.

New tennis coach expects team to be strong this year

by Caleb Casey

Senior Staff Writer

The GHS varsity girls tennis team has several players back from last year, including all three of its top singles players, and the squad's new coach, Mark Sloan, an assistant from last year's team, expects the program to have a successful 2012 season.

"We're a good, strong team," Coach Sloan said. "We're competitive in the conference."

The squad's overall numbers are solid with 19 players. It takes 12 girls to field a full group for a meet (four singles, eight doubles).

The team practiced indoors at Grayling Middle School during the first week of the preseason (March 12-16). Coach Sloan said the team's initial sessions have gone well.

"Great attitudes. They all love to play tennis," Coach

Sloan said. "We're working more on techniques and strategy. I'm really happy about the quality of the players."

In addition to having its #1, #2, and #3 singles players back from last year's team, the Vikings also have several doubles players returning, Coach Sloan said.

"We're excited for the season," said Dani Dami, one of the squad's returning Alpena. singles players. "We have a good team."

"Can't wait to get out onto the courts," said Rachel Jensen, another one of the team's singles players.

The Vikings will open their 2012 season with a meet at Charlevoix on Tuesday, April 10. On Thursday, April Grayling will play in the first of its six scheduled home meets at 4:30 p.m. vs.
